

Silver Guesswork and Silver Proof

With a title like that, where to start? Silver guesswork is making predictions to draw people's money away from them and into predictor's pockets! Silver proof is we wait and see what actually happens and how and when. No marathon length historical item this time, but some thoughts the community should weigh rather than continue buying fantasies. A well known information seller who has frequently made price and timing calls for silver that time has demonstrated to have not only be wrong but very wildly wrong and is just never taken to task for it by his interviewers (sales promoters), has been saying Morgan Chase is holding silver on behalf of China. Conversely we read the CB of China continues to accumulate gold. Where are they holding this gold? Yes, in China! Why would China have a large amount of silver stored in a nation with which it has had rumblings of military conflict with? That, in the face of this fact of silver being military strategic! The slap-happy, cotton candy fairy tale silly juvenile Disneyworld rainbow fantasy things people will say to reel in money from those susceptible to appeals to personality! Another high profile flashing neon light marquee personality has openly declared "silver will be $100 in 2018. Or 2019." How much insight does it require to churn out such declarations, and has he ever prognosticated wrongly before? Just keep extending the prediction farther out into the future so as to be able to eventually banshee 200 decibels holler you were "right;" this is not fairplay, it's changing the rules as the game continues. Are any of you able to make predictions? Yes, we all can do that so easily; but doing this only nets money for a few, right? Selling hope!

I like most of you don't know what silver will do just around the next bend in the river of time. It may blast off and never come back; it may continue depressed for many dozens of months. We aren't on the inside; we can't know; regardless of a major silver mine in Mexico being shut down over water use, or another major silver mine in Guatemala also being inactive, rattlesnake shorts and copperhead media find ways to interpret such things as bearish to investors!

We're still waiting for "silver will never trade below $30 again" trumpeted as a near Papal Bull straight from the Vatican with the Pope wearing his tall hat and speaking "Ex Cathedra" in fall 2012 to be realized! This is sad friends, and these seedy conference attending flakes have made their own silver bull market years ahead of a real bull market, by self promotion and this odd inducement ability their promoters possess to get listeners to believe "this guy's light shines so much more brightly than my own he's practically a Water Walker; therefore if I am to succeed, I need to send him money for a paid subscription," this reeks of televangelists gyrating; Robert Tilton for one and his infamous $1,000 dollar "vow of faith" that had old ladies giving him money while eating Gravy Train dog food crawling with weevils.

Anyone else get the feeling that if these guys would shut up with price and timing predictions, we'd finally get price relief? They have jinxed and hexed silver by making boundlessly presumptuous statements and this folly has persisted for years. They fatally dampen silver's prospects every time they belch out bullish predictions. They could never know when silver will break out and to what level, because none of them are on the "inside" to know how much silver remains available for dumping to cap prices. "Silver will advance, unless it declines" sounds familiar? Please don't be like brainless rock ore and let them mine and mill you! Crapshoots!

Are there any good newsletter subscriptions? Sure! However I refuse to make any endorsements. The higher the price the more you stand to be disappointed in case of reversals. Do your own due diligence. It seems reasonable that sources should lose credibility after years of wrong metals timing predictions, does it not? It's as if their calendars have at least fifty two Friday the 13ths per annum! Free resource stock picks are at 321 Gold all the time. Sure, BM already bought, and you think the newsletter subscription promoters haven't also already bought before they hype companies to you? Why start out of a subscription price hole then? Google is always a great resource for data. I was 100% self enabled in 2001 to enter Silver Standard private placement by 1) my own research into all free info online and 2) discussions with IR department.

Another well known voice has hammered away at the theme that Morgan Chase Bank has a vast amount of silver with the objective of switching to long and profiting thereby. No friends, their idea is to use it to continue capping prices in order to defend Federal Reserve currency against potentially competing currencies; against historic metallic money. This they will do domestically even if efforts internationally to cap silver quotes finally fail. Since he gets paid by a bullion seller, he can't allow any opposing possibility as to why the bank has so much metal. Any ETF silver is also dedicated to price suppression. It's just a smaller replay of the Silver Purchase Act of 1934 followed by FDR's EO 6814 seizing silver. The purpose was to have a Treasury Department stockpile with which to maintain a price cap so as to make the Fed dollar look stronger. They soak up more wealth by having the Fed remain in business, than by allowing silver prices to advance. See January 2019 release "Top Morgan Chase Attorney Member Pilgrims Society" (193 pages)

<http://nosilvernationalization.org/219-119.pdf> to get another "whiff" of just how deep is this anti-silver spider hole! This attorney's grandfather spoke against silver at the Monetary Conferences in Indianapolis in 1897 and 1898! JPMC may also hold silver to deliver against short position if its capping tricks stop working.

How will the well known "beast system" of the closing book of the NT be realized by allowing people to hold real money in their hands? Cyber currency is more likely where TPTB want people to gravitate towards and accounts that can be unplugged at whim by some Monetary Tribunal. JPMC Bank sure enough is in the hierarchy of TPTB. Some think the "beast system" will only cover mainland Europe.

How about asking your Senators and Congressmen to insist that JPMC sell silver at $15 the ounce to the Department of Defense for a restored silver strategic stockpile of 165 MOZ, which is where it was in late 1970? I do mean, a full 165MOZ at $15 flat dollars the ounce? Chase Manhattan Bank, Chemical Bank, Manufacturers Hanover Bank and J.P. Morgan & Company (forerunners merged to form JPMC) all had strong linkage to industrial silver users. These banks scooped up giant amounts of silver coin in 1965-1969 that ended up melted at

Treasury for bullion and dispensed to silver users at scandalous chickenshit prices. For details, see "The Silver Raiders" released in September 2003

Another well known figure recently prognosticated that soon, perhaps by late May 2019, precious metals will commence a real rise

<https://goldswitzerland.com/moves-in-gold-silver-will-be-1970s-on-stilts/>

Could he be right? Yes or no; how would I know, I never had a crystal ball. It's now been 97 months since silver was $49.85 intraday. But to borrow a nearly trademarked word, "CAVEAT," this European fellow has suggested for years you can be so clever as to store your gold with him overseas in Switzerland. If you don't store it with him, he makes no money! What will you possibly do to use gold for emergency or investment money, when all you can transfer to another party is a gold storage certificate? It's like having an automobile title, but what the other party wants is the actual automobile? What if the U.S. government interferes with you receiving a gold shipment from Switzerland? What of the personality popularity profile parade then? He says "hold it overseas out of the reach of the U.S. government," and any incoming shipments to America can and will be inspected; passports can be canceled in time of war. Please don't outsmart yourself by overrating this siren song of starry, vaunted personalities. They can be right about what gold can and will do, and fatally wrong for those trusting them, as to what they should do with gold after buying it! Just how reliable are the defenses of these storage operators against kidnapers grabbing them and/or their relatives? You won't notice them addressing these concerns, so you better do it for your own interests! I figure that E.K. holds his gold where he can get at it without it having to come through Customs inspection! Why wouldn't he want you to do the same for yourself? Your guns, bullets and emergency food are all so vital, and you'd not consider holding them beyond reach!

Can you carry gold on a plane?

Yes, you are allowed to carry gold on an international flight. There is however no duty-free allowance for doing so. If you decide to carry gold on a flight then you will need to declare it and pay the customs duty. The maximum weight of gold allowed to carry for a traveler is up to 1 kg in any form.

If you're carrying 33 or more troy ounces of gold you will sure run into turbulence. Please don't hold your precious gold overseas! Bear in mind that anyone marketing a program to you isn't likely to articulate what the negatives about his offering are! Why would they do themselves out of a deal? You best look out for your own interests.

I've never suggested to anyone to hold PM where they couldn't access it in a national or world crisis. Just buy some fine imported Swiss chocolates, okay? Sorry, but any private vault anywhere is subject to sudden government takeover. However, in the USA this threat has, almost miraculously actually lessened recently (but not totally when the “national emergency” card is played); read on.

On March 19, 2019, an important PM miner announced raising $230 million in senior notes. They may be sensing an urgency to acquire something major to add to their bag in advance of a real price advance. Yes, our enemy the Queen of England actually holds shares in this one!

Craft a bogus but legitimate looking gold storage certificate with a non-existent vault service and post it with a magnet on your refrigerator door, in event of robbery! Let them think it's out of the country! Get some cheap synthetic rubies off E Bay (some even come with phony laminated certs made by sellers and they're certifying synthetics misrepresented as naturals from Mozambique! I bought an inventory of these, some large, for $30!) Make some real looking appraisals for large sums and leave on a dresser top. Let thieves think they're getting something. Better yet, hold them at gunpoint till police arrive. Be sure to tell the police dispatcher exactly what color shirt you're wearing so they won't open fire on you in their "cop adventure!"

If you want silver for emergency barter money, don't expect to get any premium for it because a one-ouncer has a limited run design that is nowhere near to a universal market for trade and exchange; whereas the silver content is. That friends is no "paradigm" but a raw basic fact. You're better off with 90% especially dimes and Mercs are easier to validate than the series that followed; ever hear of a clad Merc? No you have not! Otherwise looking at the year dates will remain imperative and I'm speaking of "dime savers" who aren't into premiums paid for scarcer dates/conditions/mint marks/errors. Remember due to proofs you could still find a 90% dime dated later than 1964, but usually won't. For this same reason Franklin halves are better than 1964 Kennedys; the tilt to the 64 JFK's is nearly always less wear. Validating these is less tedious than dimes. 1940s Mercs are the best value in Mercs due to lesser scarcity and less wear.

PARADIGM

Still another well known personage seized on an article from June 19, 1912, New York Times alleging enormous gold deposits in Arizona's Grand Canyon. Some of you may have encountered quotes of Fed Chairman William M. Martin's infamous statement in spring 1968 that the $35 per ounce gold price would be defended "down to the last ingot." The gold and silver price managers have been superbly talented long range planners. If 56 years before the end of the London Gold Pool in mid 1968 it was known to them that the GC held huge gold resources, exploitation of those deposits would have started thirty or more years in advance of 1968 and the $35 per ounce gold price could well still be in effect, with the assumption of so much gold there! Martin's statement on defending the low gold price should also be a wakeup call for Ted's nearly sightless cult followers!

Meaning this; the same super influential interests Martin was repping for 51 years ago are still in control, in the form of their sons and nominees; their attitude towards PM has not changed; they will defend the low silver price “down to the last ingot” as well. He still hasn’t conceded Chase could have any other motive for having silver than that which will facilitate his sponsor’s silver sales. Could I be wrong in my cynicism? Yes I could be as no one is omniscient; and this is not a “caveat,” because you aren’t purchasing anything from me! Until silver outperforms, we must temper optimism with cynicism, as the megabanks are not our friends. They know wealth will be transferred to us if silver escapes their price management, and they don’t want us prosperous!

See the December 2018 release “Low Silver Down To The Last Ingot” <http://nosilvernationalization.org/217-1218.pdf> (209 pages). NO “PAY WALL” for Greg Hunter fans! I am against selling things? No. I’m against denials that advertising sessions are other than--- advertising sessions, and requests to subsidize people selling things when they've already paid to get a promotional session. No phenomenon of consistent, repetitive free advertising exists.

I am against people selling things; no I am not, only against marketing sessions proffered as news editorials.
Call these sessions what they are please.

JP Morgan Chase has no intention to do anything ever to benefit silver longs. I still think there is a plan to criminalize precious metals ownership. It's best fought at State level. We will have to stand by and see what becomes of Chase and ETF silver. I think they'll only switch to long if the tides become too great to fight.
With trend investors perpetually stupid, who knows when that will be. Recently TPTB have pulled strings to get BITEGROIN moving higher, to once again draw off stupid trend investors so at the right moment, they will again be devastated with a violent drop like we already saw.

I do hold silver as I believe in its future return as money. I haven’t made any attempt to say when that could be, since I never felt like a “guru.” I never tossed chicken bones into a circle of sulfur while doing incantations. Anyone can be a historian however, with enough time spent. In February 2019 something fantastically dubious, nevertheless happened; it does enhance our prospects for not being nationalized or confiscated of precious metals---

The US Supreme Court on Wednesday ruled 9-0 that the Constitution's ban on excessive fines, written into the Eighth Amendment, applies to the states as well — a sweeping ruling that strengthens property rights and could limit controversial police seizures, such as those done through civil forfeiture, nationwide. President Trump has no idea to decommission the Federal Reserve and he is his own different brand of globalist. Make America Great Again isn't as nice as it sounds. He wants to build up the military so we can win a third World War for his British (not Israeli) bosses. We have still another well known fellow with a widely followed website and he harps all the time about Israeli influence. Of course that influence "is real," (get the pun?) But BM is incapable of seeing any British influence whatsoever. There have been literally hundreds of Rhodes Scholars over the years that became Presidents, Supreme Court justices, Governors, Secretaries of State, ambassadors, generals, university presidents, corporation directors and foundation trustees and more. All British influence. That traces to before World War One and England used us to win both World Wars it planned and caused. Rhodes himself said --- "I am on the lookout for those who will do the governing of the nations in the years that are to come" --- (Review of Reviews, New York, May 1902, page 558) --- the Rhodes Scholars are an important satellite of the superior Pilgrims Society, also schemed by Rhodes---

Several top power people are in the open as to being members of the Order of the British Empire---Bill Gates in forcible vaccines and Mike Bloomberg in loss of gun ownership. Greenspan made it into the OBE but was given a "sta bene" as to advancing higher into The Pilgrims. The British Anglicans created Israel in 1917 and 1948 yes working with the Rothschilds to have excuse for another British planned World War; Israel is England's unruly stepchild. England is the ultimate control here, not Israel. The Royals are at the top, not the Rothschilds. No Rothschilds have appeared in any lists of The Pilgrims Society since the mid-1970s; probably because they haven't converted to Church of England! I started like the rest, "no one has any wealth or power besides the Rothschilds," that was many years ago and I had to drop that illusion which has been pumped up to provide "cover" for the many other dynasties eating away at the world so they can proceed unhindered; another case of Anglicans and Episcopalians using the stupidity of "Jew baiters" to attribute everything to one family. I do see BM's site daily as he has good resource stock picks for no charge. Here's an interesting resource stock I found "on my own" and it looks most interesting---no, as yet I haven't bought due to my "March Of Dimes" campaign (so to speak) ---

Round Top Mountain rhyolite (Texas, USA), a massive, unique Y-bearing-fluorite-hosted heavy rare earth element (HREE) deposit

DOI: 10.1016/S1002-0721(14)60037-5

Nicholas E. Pingitore, J. W. Clague, Daniel Gorski • Published 2014 •

Round Top Mountain in Hudspeth County, west Texas, USA is a surface-exposed rhyolite intrusion enriched in Y and heavy rare earth elements (HREEs), as well as Nb, Ta, Be, Li, F, Sn, Rb, Th, and U. The massive tonnage, estimated at well over 1 billion tons, of the deposit makes it a target for recovery of valuable yttrium and HREEs (YHREEs), and possibly other scarce elements. Because of the extremely fine grain size of the mineralized rhyolite matrix, it has not been clear which minerals host the YHREEs and in what proportions. REE-bearing minerals reported in the deposit included bastnäsite-Ce, Y-bearing fluorite, xenotime-Y, zircon, aeschynite-Ce, a Ca-Th-Pb fluoride, and possibly ancylite-La and cerianite-Ce. Extended X-ray absorption fine structure (EXAFS) indicated that virtually all of the yttrium, a proxy for the HREEs, resided in a coordination in the fluorite-type crystal structure, rather than those in the structures of bastnäsite-Ce and xenotime-Y. The YREE grade of the Round Top deposit was just over 0.05%, with 72% of this consisting of YHREEs. This grade was in the range of the South China ionic clay deposits that supply essentially all of the world's YHREEs. Because the host Y-bearing fluorite is soluble in dilute sulfuric acid at room temperature, a heap leaching of the deposit appeared feasible, aided by the fact that 90%–95% of the rock consists of unreactive and insoluble feldspars and quartz. The absence of overburden, remarkable consistency of mineralization grade throughout the massive rhyolite, proximity (a few km) to a US interstate highway, major rail systems and gas and electricity, temperate climate, and stable political location in the world's largest economy all enhanced the potential economic appeal of Round Top. BM's site and a well known Connecticut site with links to Dallas have butted heads several times, each claiming victory. The biggest flaw with both is this incredibly stubborn refusal to admit to the superintending role of "by invitation only" membership groups in PM price management. Ridiculously I was told the Silver Users Association manipulates downwards and this "G" group in Connecticut manipulates upwards. No pal, the SUA has had thousands of times more influence in silver than any group representing itself as long silver.

Here we go again with a different well known figure stealing credit (or having credit falsely attributed to him) for my many years of long and free work; when I cite others work I allow credit but reciprocity is unthinkable <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=A1qJB6q05lc>

The most visible group working against silver is the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) www.cfr.org however it's only a subsidiary of The Pilgrims Society, which I've written far more about than anyone (by word and image count). FYI Tucker Carlson and his daddy were both in The Pilgrims 2014 roster; his daddy I'd noticed years before. Senior was an official of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Foundation for the Defense of Democracies (warmongers), Scripps Memorial Hospitals, KPBS TV, California General Mortgage Assurance Corporation, California Community Bank, San Diego Coalition, Sharp Memorial Hospitals, Fund for American Studies and Ambassador to the Seychelles. The W. middle initial is Warner, of a very old-line Massachusetts colonial family; the current president of The Pilgrims NYC is second generation Miner Hill Warner, who controls the monumental fortune left by Collis P. Huntington (1821-1900), who was a prime mover in The Crime of 1873, by which the "gold only" faction seized more than one million square miles of land. No friends, the Rothschilds do not “own and control everything.” The Carlsons are Episcopalians.

Gift Contributions to Reduce Debt Held by the Public

The Bureau of the Fiscal Service may accept gifts donated to the United States Government to reduce debt held by the public. Acting for the Secretary of the Treasury, Fiscal Service may accept a gift of:

- Money, only on the condition that it be used to reduce debt held by the public.
- An outstanding government obligation, only on the condition that the obligation be cashed and the proceeds used to reduce debt held by the public.
- Other intangible personal property only on the condition that the property is sold and the proceeds used to reduce the public debt.

Gifts to reduce debt held by the public may be inter vivos (from a living person) gifts or testamentary bequests (in a person's will).

Let's discuss corruption some more. Have any of you heard anything faintly significant in many months regarding the proposed return of Texas (UTIMCO) gold, to the State of Texas? No, and few if any members of the Texas State Legislature act like they care anymore about that gold, than about a chewing gum wrapper that the wind blew past them on a sidewalk! State legislatures are often like Congress---corruption abounds. In Texas legislature we currently have a Garnet Coleman (stopped for driving 94MPH, lied about the cop); Sarah Davis (named one of the ten worst by Texas Monthly); another named Charlie Geren (accused of a campaign manager using Child Protective Services to harass a political competitor); Ron Reynolds (served jail term for barratry, legal malpractice); Joan Huffman (twice rated by Reform Austin as one of the worst state politicians); Donna Campbell (ex legislator, rated among the ten worst by Texas Monthly); Kel Seliger (accused of abusing state senate procedures and duplicity); Angie Chen Button (noted for "poisonous and toxic lies" and going "ballistic"); Pete Gallego (former legislator accused of residency malpractice); Joe Moody (smear campaigns); Jessica Farrar (proposed to fine men for masturbating, what a dirty harridan!)

These are the sort of "friends" in the Texas State Legislature helping the Texas Humane Legislation Network and they have a pal in the State Attorney General's office refusing to investigate them for charity fraud! As I researched the THLN I noticed strong linkage to Humane Society of the United States and also to American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The HSUS and ASPCA have linkage to Wall Street, big surprise, not! The Texas State Legislature on the whole is a disappointing body. They appear entirely unconcerned about Texas gold stored at HSBC Bank New York. The wildly spurious THLN I describe at www.texaspetprotect.org
